SYSTEM MIGRATION:

Don't let legacy systems impede your progress

"Frankly, it was a lot faster and less painful than we had feared. No-one is looking back now that we are up and running."

THE CHALLENGE

Inflexible legacy systems can become limiting factors as organisations grow and evolve.

Vendors also become complacent, charging you for outdated feature sets and promising upgrades that never eventuate.

Yet there is often reticence to switch to a modern platform given the perceived cost and pain of migrating data to a new system and retraining users.

At BraveGen we've performed many migrations, working closely with clients to minimise disruptions.

Once onboard, our proven track record of product enhancement and commitment to customer success ensures that our clients' evolving needs will continue to be met in to the future.

BP CASE STUDY

BP had been using software to manage their consents for about 7 years.

However they were increasingly frustrated by the system's limitations and overdue product upgrades.

BraveGen worked closely with BP to ensure business continuity during the migration process.

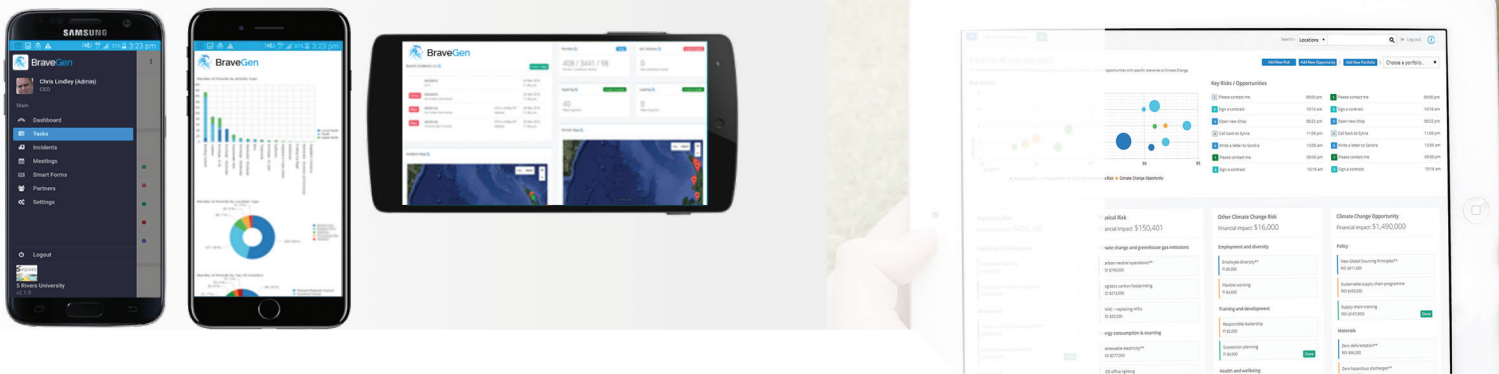

BraveGen migrated all the header details (consent number, consent type, location, expiry date, etc.) from the existing system and set up this information in the BraveGen system. This process was completed in 1 week from the initial project kick off meeting.

It took only 4 weeks to migrate all the other information – conditions, actions, users and files into the BraveGen system.

BP New Zealand

BP Oil New Zealand manages petrol stations, terminals and aviation areas throughout New Zealand. Across its operation, the business holds over 300 consents. BP Oil New Zealand are required to maintain a 100% rating in their license to operate at all times.
